How to ruin your law career before it even started.

Also 7 million in damages is ballsy.

SA1, if you are going to ruin your big law career like this, might as well shoot your shot. If he gets $7M (or even $1M), I'd do this in a heartbeat.

Will he though. I'm not in lit, so don't quote me, but based on what he wrote, I'll be surprised if it even makes it to discovery. I just got a feeling this will be tossed and laughed out of court.

"A Man Who Is His Own Lawyer Has a Fool for a Client" and all that.

P.46 and 63 are absolute masterpieces in performance art. If someone wrote this guy as a character on TV show I would think it's laying on too thick.

I did not make it too far into the complaint. I have no idea whether this guy was bullied or not. But his complaint was definitely written by someone who has some idea of what lawyers should found like, but no comprehension of how to draft a complaint.

Sure, there is a place for some legalese. But the factual sections of the complaint should tell his story in an engaging way.

I was not engaged.

There's a real defamation claim in there... and also a whole lot of random.

16: Although the anonymous internet posts centered on the false assertion that the Plaintiff was fired for sexual harassment and misconduct, the posts, digressed wildly into describing the purported personal opinions of the Plaintiff as to the correctness of judicial opinions published by the United States Supreme Court during the summer of 2022, his habit of dressing relatively formally in the workplace by wearing at least a two piece suit and a necktie every work day, his stylistic choices in menswear with a particular fixation on his occasional wearing of button suspenders, his rumored enthusiasm to participate in class discussions at law school, his extracurricular activities at law school, his general political views, his invitations as a formal escort in the debutante ball circuit of New York City, his acceptance into exclusive social circles and private social clubs in Manhattan, and baseless speculation about his family life and circumstances.

If that ain't a meritocracy then idk what is bby.

Attorney 1, this complaint is written by one of the very "prestigious" great cabinet like Kirkland, whose lawyers tell us they hire only the "best of the best."

Reading the complaint suggests perhaps ... that's not true.

One of the funniest things I've ever read

Kind of a shame it's just going to get dismissed for lack of service. Much comedy could be had if this donut had to make an actual appearance at some point.

I read his complaint– idk if true but apparently other summers filed false sexual harassment claims against him at K&E and with NYU law (his school). Bullying is one thing but false sexual harassment claims can easily ruin someone's life, I see it with athletes all the time.

And the complaint really could and should have stopped there without going into how the posts then “digressed” and itself also digressing.

Yeah, he should have hired a firm to do it. Stuff like “I wasn’t celebrating dobbs cus I was still celebrating Bruen” does NOT help your case lmao. Also the stuff about wearing suits everyday and going to balls/manhattan inner circle events. Def a weirdo.

The thing about sexual harassmt is that the harassers often don't think they're harassing even though they are.

Agree that false sexual harassment complaints are an issue. But if they are the subject of the complaint, he needs to focus on those to the exclusion of everything else.

Filing a lawsuit because my colleagues don't think I'm cool enough and won't hang out with me. The behavior of a stone cold freak!
